Joe Andrews

Joe Andrews is a certified NSPF Instructor and has over 15 years in the aquatics industry. His class participants have consistently had high levels of success and provided feedback that they were well equipped not only to be successful on their certification test, but to go home and operate their facility effectively.

Joe has worked for and managed a variety of public and nonprofit aquatics facilities from small single pool facilities to large multi-attraction aquatic centers both new and very old. He has experience in all areas of aquatic facility management from pool operations, facility maintenance, risk management, lifeguard training and program development. His approach is to teach aquatics topics in plain English from the standpoint of a current practitioner in the field. His goal is to work with operators to find the best way to operate THEIR facilities given THEIR reality.

He received his Bachelor of Science in Business Administration from Eastern Oregon University. He has served as the Aquatics Section President for the Oregon Recreation and Parks Association. He was the recipient of a Fitness Leadership Award from the Oregon Governor's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports for promoting fitness and active lifestyles. He has presented a variety of training topics over the last 8 years on all fronts of aquatics facility operations.
